On the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary:

"Today the Virgin Mary ascended to heaven; rejoice, for she reigns with Christ forever." The Church will close her chants today with this sweet antiphon: the spirit in which it should be celebrated. Mary's death leaves no impression but peace; that death had no other cause than love. Being a mere creature, she could not deliver herself from that claim of the old enemy; but leaving her tomb filled with flowers, she mounts up to heaven, flowing with delights, leaning upon the Beloved. Amid the acclamations of the daughters of Sion, who will henceforth never cease to call her blessed, she ascends surrounded by choirs of heavenly spirits joyfully praising the Son of God. Never more will shadows veil, as they did on earth, the glory of the most beautiful daughter of Eve. Beyond the immovable Thrones, beyond the dazzling Cherubim, beyond the flaming Seraphim, onward she passes, delighting the heavenly city with her sweet perfumes. She stays not till she reaches the very confines of the Divinity; close to the throne of honor where her Son, the King of ages reigns in justice and in power; there she is proclaimed Queen, there she will reign forevermore in mercy and in goodness. Truly the whole world is the pedestal of her glory, as the moon is her footstool, the sun her vesture, the stars of heaven her glittering crown.

As long as this world lasts a severe law protects the entrance to the eternal palace; no one, without having first laid aside the garb of flesh, is admitted to contemplate the King of heaven. There is one, however, of our lowly race, whom the terrible decree does not touch. Full of grace, she is on the way which leads to the awful throne of the King of kings, she walks not alone: He is in no way separated from His Mother, and would have her participate even in the giving of the Holy Ghost to every soul. This ineffable union is the foundation of all Mary's greatnesses, which are crowned by today's triumph.

"As Christ is Lord," says Arnold of Bonneval, "Mary is Lady and sovereign. He who bends the knee before the Son kneels before the Mother. At the sound of her name the devils tremble, men rejoice, the angels glorify God. Mary and Christ are one flesh, one mind and one love. From the day when it was said, The Lord is with thee, the grace was irrevocable, the unity inseparable; and in speaking of Son and Mother, we must call it not so much a common glory as a selfsame glory." ~ Dom Prosper Gueranger
